Educators share fun ideas for National Poetry Month on Edmodo

Today marks the beginning of National Poetry Month and we've searched the Edmodo Communities for fun activities you can try in your classroom to celebrate. Try one of the ideas shared below during the month of April, or comment online telling us about your favorite poetry-related activity.

30 Poems/30 Days

Create a group for Poetry Month. Each day of the month have students share their favorite poem with the class. You could also honor your favorite poet each day in lieu of a poem.

Slam Poetry – Shared by Ms. Sifford

We have a professional slam poet come in and perform, do a few workshops with the students, and then they perform at a special ENG II assembly. Videos are posted to Edmodo class pages.

Spine Poetry - Shared by Ms. White

Have students create Spine Poetry! Spine Poetry is the art of collecting interesting book titles and arranging them in clusters so the spines could be read like a sentence. The sentences can then be adapted into poetry. Check out some samples at thethingsyoucanread.blogspot.com

Poetry Cafe - Shared by Ms. Lee

"Set up a Poetry Cafe at school and invited parents and other special guests to come hear students recite their favorite poems aloud. Since so much of poetry is about the rhythm and the phrasing of the words, the only way their poems can be truly appreciated is to read them aloud."

Poetry Jam – Shared by Ms. Speck

I have students produce various types of poems – alliteration, simile, metaphor, ode, clerihew, a homework excuse, and a sonnet. Some even try poems for two voices. Then we have a Poetry Jam – complete with hot chocolate, berets for the poets to wear, and finger snapping rather than applause. The kids LOVE IT!

Pop Music Videos – Ms. Lane

Many of today's songs, as we know, are poems. Read the lyrics to your class' favorite song (without telling them what you're reading). Then play the video and discuss.

Quote of the Day

"All successful people men and women are big dreamers. They imagine what their future could be, ideal in every respect, and then they work every day toward their distant vision, that goal or purpose."

– Walt Whitman

Just for Fun

Student of the Week: Tommy Thorley
